

One-pager Class Showcase

The one-pager class keeps everything on a single A4 page: a compact masthead, tight vertical rhythm, and a columned body. Sections never force a page break, so the layout stays dense. Use coloured dot headings to echo the brand, and drop into two or three columns wherever the content suits it.

● Coloured dot headings

Each heading is a filled circle in a brand colour followed by a bold title, echoing the dots in the Fiddlie logo. Use `\pinksection`, `\yellowsection` and `\bluesection` for the standard palette.

● Icon headings

💡 Swap the dot for an icon

Use `\iconsection[colour]{icon}{Title}` to put a FontAwesome icon in place of the dot — handy when a glyph carries meaning.

⚡ Fast

Single-page output builds quickly and reads at a glance.

📏 Tight

Compact geometry and vertical rhythm fit more on the page.

🎨 On-brand

Brand colours, logo and type are inherited from `fiddlie-common`.

● Columns

Wrap content in `twocol` or `threecol` to flow it into balanced columns at a smaller size. Paragraphs avoid splitting awkwardly across the column break.

● Custom colours

`\dotsection` accepts any xcolor name, so headings are not limited to the three brand colours.